Co-Editors Bryant Jensen and Adam Sawyer discuss their new book published in December 2012. In response to a “Mexican Education Crisis,” contributors to this volume articulate a new approach to Mexican-American schooling: a bi-national focus that highlights the interpersonal assets of Mexican-origin children. The authors document the urgency of adopting this approach and provide a framework for crossing national and disciplinary borders to improve scholarship, policy and practice associated with PreK-12 schooling.

Bryant Jensen is an Assistant Professor of Teacher Education at Brigham Young University. He earned a Ph.D. in Educational Psychology at Arizona State University, and is a former Fulbright scholar in Mexico and Institute of Education Sciences (IES) post-doctoral fellow at the University of Oregon.

Adam Sawyer is an Assistant Professor of Education in the Bard College Master of Arts in Teaching Program. He has worked as a bilingual teacher in East Palo Alto, San Francisco, and Los Angeles, and as a consultant to the Mexican Secretariat of Education. He holds a doctorate in International Education from the Harvard Graduate School of Education.
