Justice for my Sister—Omega Phi Beta Sorority Inc. Screening

Tuesday, February 26th, 2013 | TCC 227

My name is Nancy Talamantes and I am the current Academic Chair of Phi Chapter at the University of Southern California. I am contacting you to invite you to our annual Week of Illumination, a week dedicated to serving and educating our community on the persistent issue of violence against women. This year, in collaboration with the Political Student Assembly, we will kick off our week with a film screening titled “Justice for my Sister” a documentary about the unstoppable determination of one woman to see that her sister’s murderer does not go unpunished.

In accordance with our sorority’s philanthropy, to raise awareness of violence against women, we have decided to co-host this event in an effort to create consciousness of how domestic violence is a common issue for women of all ages and ethnicities. The event will consist of a film screening followed by a Q&A with the director of the film. The director, Kimberly Bautista, will speak about the femicide in Guatemala and Central America and the struggle women face in the judicial system to have their cases acknowledged. Bautista will also discuss her Justice for my Sister Collective, which seeks to help domestic violence victims both in Guatemala and the United States, and her Texting for Peace Initiative which was first launched in Guatemala and recently in the United States.

For more information about the film and the advocacy campaign this film initiated, please visit www.justiceformysister.com. We hope to learn and educate the audience about this unfortunate epidemic worldwide and would appreciate your collaboration in making this a successful event. If you have any questions, comments, or concerns please feel free to contact me directly at natalamas@usc.edu or (626) 664-6392. I look forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience.

ASE Commons Event: Diasporas of Empire: An Anti-Imperialist Arab Feminist Critique

Thursday, March 7, 2013 | 3:30 - 5:30pm | KAP 445

Speaker: Nadine Naber (University of Michigan)
Respondent: Sarah Gualtieri (ASE/History)

Arab Americans are one of the most misunderstood segments of the U.S. population, especially after the events of 9/11. In Arab America, Nadine Naber tells the stories of second generation Arab American young adults living in the San Francisco Bay Area, most of whom are political activists engaged in two culturalist movements that draw on the conditions of diaspora, a Muslim global justice and a Leftist Arab movement.

Writing from a transnational feminist perspective, Naber reveals the complex and at times contradictory cultural and political processes through which Arabness is forged in the contemporary United States, and explores the apparently intra-communal cultural concepts of religion, family, gender, and sexuality as the battleground on which Arab American young adults and the looming world of America all wrangle. As this struggle continues, these young adults reject Orientalist thought, producing counter-narratives that open up new possibilities for transcending the limitations of Orientalist, imperialist, and conventional nationalist articulations of self, possibilities that ground concepts of religion, family, gender, and sexuality in some of the most urgent issues of our times: immigration politics, racial justice struggles, and U.S. militarism and war.
The Corner Room: An LGBT Support Group
Student Counseling Services - Spring 2013: Fridays 10-11:30

This group is for all members of the LGBTQI community for support on topics that are decided by the students. Topics may include, but are not limited to: sexual and gender identity concerns; developing meaningful relationships; connecting with or trusting others; dating; family relationships; feeling marginalized; spiritual concerns; and balancing academics and personal life.
Undergraduate and graduate students welcome. Confidentiality is a priority. Please contact Ekta Kumar, MA or Elizabeth Reyes PhD at 213-740-7711 for more information.

USC Queer People of Color Student Organization

Are you identified within the LGBTQIA spectrum? Do you also come from a minority background, including a race and class, which are do not fit the social norm of campus? Well ... USC Queer People of Color is the first club to focus on the Minority Groups which lie within the LGBTQIA community. We come together as a group Tuesday at 8pm every other week . Meetings consist of discussions between diversity of backgrounds and class, community building exercises and caucuses designed on how we can fight the assimilation faced by Queer Minorities. This is a new organization for the Queer and Ally Student Assembly, all people from all backgrounds are welcome. You do not have to be “minority” to come, you must however have an interest in learning about atypical backgrounds and an open mind of others.
